Overview of DVERT

The Domestic Violence Enhanced Response Team, called DVERT, provides a coordinated intervention for domestic violence victims and offenders with partnership with local law enforcement agency, victim service providers, and other partners in the criminal and civil legal systems. DVERT is a nationally recognized model of intervention for high-risk/high lethality domestic violence cases. DVERT is co-located with the Portland Police Bureau's Domestic Violence Reduction Unit. DVERT's goals are to:

- Enhancing the safety of victims and their children who are at high-risk for lethality or severe re-assault.
- Ensuring appropriate containment of offenders who are at high risk to re-offend or have the potential for lethal violence.
- Partnering with local law enforcement agencies.

In addition, the DVERT members are available to:

- Provide specialized training locally and nationally; and
- Support communities seeking to develop and sustain similar collaborative efforts.

Referring a case to DVERT

Multnomah County DVERT accepts referrals of cases for possible collaborative response. If you think you have a high-risk domestic violence case that would benefit from a coordinated, multidisciplinary response including investigation and prosecution of crimes in Multnomah County:

- Review the case within your agency to determine if the case is a high-risk domestic violence case.
- Contact the victim to discuss the role of DVERT and gauge the victim's interest in participating in the DVERT process.
- Submit DVERT one page referral form to DVERT Project Coordinator by fax or electronically.
- A DVERT victim advocate will contact the victim and complete the comprehensive referral which includes assessments of lethality and recidivism. The assessment tool used by DVERT are evidence based predictive for reassault.
- The DVERT Project Coordinator will then present the case for review by all partners at a DVERT meeting.
- When a case is accepted by DVERT an action plan is developed. You will be kept informed of the progress.

DVERT Meetings

These meetings are multidisciplinary and facilitated by the DVERT Project Coordinator.

A summary of each new case is presented by the person making the DVERT referral.

- DVERT outlines ways in which DVERT could improve the outcomes for the case.
- DVERT discusses the case and makes recommendations regarding the assignment.
- Case action plans are reviewed and updated at each DVERT meeting.

DVERT Cases

Each DVERT case is unique and brings its own set of risks and opportunities. Generally, cases accepted by DVERT exhibit at least two or three of the following factors:

- Offender has a history of domestic violence reports.
- Offender repeatedly violates the restraining order.
- Escalation of frequency, intensity or type of violence.
- Offender threatens to kill the victim.
- Offender regularly uses drugs and/or alcohol.
- Victim feels that his/her life is in danger.

DVERT is making a difference

DVERT has worked on over 100 high-risk domestic violence cases, providing enhanced services to those who are impacted by domestic violence.

- 74% of DVERT cases with completed intervention have no new domestic violence crimes.
- Partners report that their agency has changed how it works with domestic violence cases because of DVERT.
- DVERT is improving collaboration and effective intervention in high risk domestic violence cases in Multnomah County.
