When the prospect of running for a Reynolds School District Board position came four years ago, I cited a “busy” career as the excuse to why I dismissed the opportunity. The truth is, at the time I was a coward not willing to get out of the comfort zone and would have rather remained, well, comfortable. Over the past few years, I have been busier than ever in my career, began a path towards business ownership, and have restarted my own formal education as of this spring. These events are being disclosed not to impress anyone, but rather impress upon the fact that I want to be here.

School board members hold great responsibilities as the figures that, working with the superintendent, oversee the realization of various goals from students, family members, teachers, and the community. Whether our children continue onto higher education, take on a trade, enlist in our armed forces, volunteer, start a business or go straight into the work force; when our students move on from our schools, we want them to be prepared and confident rather than confused and entitled.

Times are always challenging, but with enough support any individual can thrive in almost any situation. This is true for students as well as school board members. This is my first attempt at serving the local community on a public scale, and with your support I would be grateful for this opportunity to work alongside fellow board members to ensure that we pave the best path toward student achievements. Thank you!
